

Home » Blogs » Business

Dogs set to take over Progress City

By Chris Lusvardi

April 22, 2009 at 6:01 pm

Hundreds of dogs are set to take over Progress City USA as the Progress City Cluster Dog Shows runs Thursday through Sunday. It is the kickoff to the series of events at the site leading up to the Farm Progress Show in September. It will have dogs on the mind of all the attendees at the event.

For those thinking about their dogs at home, an East Central Illinois company has launched a partnership making their product available at Kroger stores. Dog Lover's Choice, produced by Yotta Pet Products in Paris, Ill., is an all natural supplement for dogs designed to improve the eating habits and overall health of even the most finicky eaters.

"We've been in the pet food business for more than 25 years and we know what dogs like," Yotta Pet Products Vice President Bob Bridwell said. "This partnership with The Kroger Co. is an extraordinary opportunity to reach dog owners all over the country with a new and exciting product that is unlike any other available to dogs today."

Dog Lover's Choice is an all natural, vitamin-filled dry dog food topping. It's formulated to encourage healthy eating habits, add a great taste to bland, dry dog food and provide dogs with the vitamins and minerals they need for healthy skin, shiny coat and overall well-being.

The product might not be enough just on its own to make a dog into a winning show dog, but it still seems like a healthy option that is made locally.